

Criminal Case Fresh Start Report

FINDING: Unfortunately, based on your answers, you are not likely eligible for an expunction or nondisclosure order. Although your case was dismissed, the statute of limitations has not expired.

Guidance: Come back to see if you might be eligible for an expunction or nondisclosure order after the statute of limitations expires. (Note that in many cases, the time between when charges are filed and the dismissal date does not count toward the statute of limitations.)

You can also contact an attorney to see if you have other options.
